This important first unit is designed to introduce students to the nine themes that will feature prominently in the World History course. Activities will focus on relating, location, culture, governance, institutions, conflict, change and continuity over time, movement and migration and technological innovation to students. By the end of the unit students will be able to give examples of the enduring understandings and apply them to world situations	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How has the changing relationship between human beings and the physical and natural environment affected human life from early times to the present? Human beings are inhabitants of the biosphere and their history is inseparable from it. This is as true today as it was 200,000 years ago. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Why have relations among humans become so complex since early times? We live in a world of intense, complicated, and diverse relationships among billions of people. Throughout most of its history our species has lived in small, scattered communities of foragers and hunters.

That the world is not connected That humans have been around for millions of years That societies do not impact one another	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How have human views of the world, nature, and the cosmos changed? History is not only the study of "what happened" but also about the ways in which humans have thought about, questioned, interpreted, and represented (in words, pictures, movies, and so on) what their senses tell them about the world and the universe. Ideas influence historical developments and, conversely, events shape ideas as humans strive to make sense of change. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Questions about the ways in which humans have multiplied on the earth and come to relate to one another in such a variety of ways are fundamental to historical investigation.

Each video is approximately 30 minutes and takes one class period. They are shown on three consecutive days to kickoff the unit. The students have a video note taking guide for each culture that they fill out along with the video.

Pearson reading (in pairs) – guided note taking;

Lesson 3 The Aztecs: Soldiers of Blood

Lesson 5 The Incas: Lords of the Mountain

3. Three sessions; 45 minutes each. Kids magazines. Each student has their own magazine. They don't need to complete the scavenger hunt in any specific order, but they have three days to complete all three scavenger hunts. Pull a small group to complete the scavenger hunt with students who struggle. Collect the scavenger hunt for a social studies grade. For students who finish more quickly, they can choose one of the essential questions and write a paragraph response in their portfolio notebooks. Tape scavenger hunts into NB after assessing student work.

. One day museum walk through the “Hall of Expertise”; 45 minute session. Be an expert! Kids have explored the cultures in three different resources: the videos, the Pearson books, and the Discover Kids magazines. They choose a specific culture and one topic about that culture to become an expert on. Some ideas are: Mayan social hierarchy, Incan terrace farming, Aztec games, a day in the life of an Incan child, Aztec decline, chocolate and the Mayans, etc. Each child needs half a sheet of poster board to create their final product.

- All of the students who want to research the same culture work together to develop ideas they'd like to explore using the essential questions as a guide. They divvy up the most compelling ideas to partners in the group. Each partner works to explore their assigned idea about their culture.
- Model the layout of a poster: large letters for the title; short phrase of

Research notes on the major achievements of Rome

Roman “Top 5” most important achievements presentation

-The museum of THEN and NOW has hired you to create an interactive module on how technology from Ancient Rome have influenced present day. Your task is to research three important technologies of Ancient Rome to show how past technologies influence the present. You will create a backwards timeline starting in modern day society and ending in Ancient Rome. You must have a minimum of four stops in time to make connections between Ancient Rome and today. Each student will then select and justify their best invention timeline.

Part II.-GROUP

-Groups of like invention timelines will come together to discuss, analyze, and create a “new” timeline that represents the collective evidence from the collaboration of this groups work. Groups will present the new timelines to the class. Students will listen to each presentation and provide feedback using a teacher generated rubric.

A final reflection will require that students pick one of these inventions and extend the timeline by predicting how this invention will continue to evolve in the future (200-1000 years from now).

Performance Task Description

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Goal ● Role ● Audience ● Situation ● Product/Performance ● Standards 	Your class has been chosen by a production company to create an innovative film that will follow the same storyline in two different time eras. The storyline will show a family coping when a son leaves his family to fight as a soldier. It will also follow the son as he is at war. The storyline will open in today's modern society. The class will be split into two teams and assigned either Ancient Greece or Ancient Rome. Your team will participate in a class debate to decide whether the other half of the film will take place in Ancient Greece or Ancient Rome. Your team should discuss family life, government, military history, and culture of each society in forming your points of debate. The two teams will then present their sides and arguments. Discussion and debate to be evaluated using the attached rubrics. Questions which will be discussed (if not brought up in debate): What are the positive and negative aspects of the storyline taking place in Ancient Greece (or Ancient Rome)? In what ways will the storyline be similar in the two eras (and in what ways different)? Will one be influenced by the other? Why would this production company film the same storyline in two different eras?

Discuss how the culture is different from ours.

What do you know about the Greeks today that you did not know yesterday?

• Today we learn about the Greek city-states and the typical government of a Greek city. As we read, let's think about how this culture is different from ours, and why. • Read Ch. 14 "The Greek Cities" and Ch. 15 "Greek Self-Government" from The Story of Mankind.

Start by looking at a map of Greece and Persia (McNally Historical Atlas of World, pp. 10-11). Note the distance between the two; the geographic features between the two; note the land beyond Greece, to the northwest. Look for Lydia, Marathon, Sparta, Plataea, Athens, Thessaly, Salamis, Plataea, Thermopylae on map • Form small groups and hand out slips of paper with background information on: Lydia, Marathon, gods of Olympus, Sparta, Plataea, Athens, Miltiades, Piraeus, Thessaly, Themosticles, Xerxes, Thermopylae. (Groups may have more than one topic.) Give 3 minutes for groups to read over information; 5 minutes to decide on how to present. Jigsaw this information with class.

Look at Hammond Historical Atlas of the World, p. 86 (map 3) and identify Carthage and Rome. Discuss proximity and geographical relationships. Read Ch. 22 "Rome and Carthage" in The Story of Mankind. Discuss reading. Which details come from written history? What is from unwritten history, or which parts would have left discoverable archaeological details?

"The Roman Empire was an accident...." Do you agree or disagree? What parts of the text and previous knowledge support this statement or refute it?
